

SLEEVES AND CUFFS.

The Former, Though Smaller, Are Highly Decorated—More Variety in Styles.

Although sleeves have decidedly diminished, they have by no means reverted as yet to the entirely plain, tight fashion. Several models show close sleeves, but they have shoulder ruffles, puffs and frills large enough to make up for the contraction in the sleeve proper. The most notable peculiarity about this portion of the costume is the adoption of flaring cuffs that fall over the hands, some of them being pointed over the back of the hand and filled in with full gathered lace ruchings; others of bell shape, with scalloped edges bound or embroidered. These cuffs are cut with the sleeve. Other cuffs are set on over the sleeves and have long points at the under-side of the arm. The majority of the new sleeves have ruchings, and although they are not an absolute necessity, as yet they probably will be before the end of the season. Nothing improves the appearance of the hands more than soft lace ruchings. Another sleeve has the cuff portion slashed into square tabs. These are corded, with the silk either matching the goods or in contrast, and have the usual lace frills. A few dresses have fancy cuffs made of puffs, plaited ribbon, shirred satin or India silk, and one model has a bracelet cuff made of soft silk and jet.

Dress becomes more and more varied in form and color. Nearly everything is now permissibly worn, and individual fancy runs riot. Capes and jackets are both fashionable and range from the severest simplicity to the greatest elaboration. The sketch illustrates a dinner bodice of white mousseline de soie. It is gathered at the neck and under a corsage of white silk, which is trimmed with beaded galloons of a Persian pattern. The galloons form shoulder straps and a belt. Loops of white satin extend below the belt, and coques of the same material adorn the shoulders. The sleeves, of mousseline, are puffed and have ruffles of mousseline as epaulets. The collar is also puffed.

JUDITH CHOLLET.

No Doubt Here.

It is a singular fact that there is such a diversity of opinion as to the result of next month's election in the United States. A fair majority of the prohibition people believe that their ticket will win. Many of the Gold Democrats have a firm faith in the success of their candidates. Nearly all of the McKinley and Bryan people swear by the heads of the tickets and, to tell the truth, none of them have a reasonable assurance of a majority of electoral votes. In contradistinction with this there remains the fact that the Free Lunch and fine beer, now on sale at the Anchor saloon, have captivated all Honolulu, so that the patronage of that famed resort increases, day by day.

The demand for Universal Stoves and Ranges is daily increasing. The second invoice has nearly all been disposed of and a third is on the way. The superior quality of the castings of this factory and the fine finish of their goods has given them the reputation they enjoy in the United States. They are sold by the Pacific Hardware Co.

If you think it's only good tea and coffee that we are selling, a call will convince you that the Palama Grocery is a well appointed store, stocked with the most approved brands of goods; and if the gratuitous testimonies of its patrons are true, they have saved considerably, since they commenced to deal with us. The proof of the pudding, etc. Palama Grocery, opposite Railway Depot. Tel. 755 every time.
